Strategic Planning

UC San Diego
Community Open House
“We must think boldly to identify and implement the unprecedented solutions that are necessary to ensure our continued level of excellence. That is why we initiated the strategic planning process.”

– Chancellor Khosla
UC San Diego will transform California and a diverse global society by educating, generating and disseminating knowledge and creative works, and engaging in public service.
We will align our efforts to be a student-centered, research-focused, service-oriented public university.
You spoke and we listened

More than 10,000 stakeholders engaged with us to help shape and create the strategic plan
Ensuring learning is accessible and affordable for all

Located on the UCSD campus, Preuss middle and high school serves San Diego County low income, highly motivated students who strive to become the first in their families to graduate from college.
29,200 jobs are directly attributable to active UC San Diego-related companies.
Research-focused

2014 Research funding topped $1 Billion as agencies and industries recognize the powerful return on investment our researchers produce for the benefit of society.
Ranked #1 school in the nation for contributing to public good - Washington Monthly
Student volunteers restore part of our San Diego community, including the American Legion Hall in National City and the Bayside Elementary school in the South bay—part of why we’re on President Obama’s Community Service Honor Roll.
The total statewide economic contribution from UC San Diego start-up companies is more than $37 billion annually and nearly 130,000 jobs.
Nurturing a collaborative and interdisciplinary research culture

Scripps-operated ANZA Seismic Network helps San Diego County prepare and plan for major earthquakes as well as researching early warning notification systems.
Improving access to high-quality patient care

UC San Diego Health System has earned top grades in patient safety for both our Hillcrest and La Jolla hospitals