Our homes are self-determined spaces where we cultivate care for ourselves and others, preserve cultural practices, and promote a sense of belonging. This sense of home affects our feelings of safety, well-being, and connection. They are places where we can be our full selves. Please discuss ways that you have found your sense of home within the UC San Diego campus community. Where are the places where you have felt at home within the Asian Pacific Islander American communities, and how have you worked to create space for others to feel at home within your community?
