- Information and Digital Media Coordinator, Libraries

- Jennifer is the Information and Digital Media Coordinator for the UC San Diego Libraries, Human Resources Department. She is part of various social media networks, using them in both her professional and personal life. She was first introduced to the social media community (Facebook) when she began her freshman year at UCSD. As social media grew, she grew along with it, by understanding and responding to the change that comes along with the new networks. Social media is changing the way we interact, the way we market ourselves, and the way we market our companies.

From Roy - Samson had his surgery Monday afternoon and I am told it went well. He may be in the hospital for 2-3 days. We will know more when we can talk to the Dr. on Tuesday. Thanks for praying for him. Please continue to pray for safety in travel and for healing. All of the children and staff welcome your prayers and I will give you a better report as soon as I know more.

Lanterns

The “Light up Kamonong” solar lantern project, was a concept of donating solar lanterns to the Kamonong Community. We received donations of $10 each and purchased 124 lanterns (our goal was 50) in Nairobi. The distribution took place in Dec 2011. The company that supplied the lanterns at a bulk discount is d.light. www.dlightdesign.com/

My friend Jill Weller has a BRIGHT idea - a challenge that God put before me. She wants to buy 50 solar lanterns for the Elma Barnett Children's Centre Kamonong and surrounding community in Kenya. Jill spends several months each year at the home in Kenya. Lanterns are only $10 each and can be purchased right in Nairobi = no shipping!! She's asked 50 friends to donate $10 each - I'm in for two. If you want to help her reach her goal, let me know and I'll message you her address.

OMB Asks for Comments on Potential Reforms to Federal Grant Policies

The Office of Management and Budget just published a notice in the Federal Register asking for public comment on potential reforms to federal grant policies contained in OMB circulars such as A-21, A-133, and A-122. These include ideas that would standardize information collection across agencies, adopt a risk-based model for single audits, and provide new administrative approaches for determining and monitoring the allocation of federal funds. These ideas reflect the input of a number of groups that have been considering these issues over the past few months, including the A-21 Task Force, which I have mentioned here before.

I encourage you to read the notice in full. To give you an idea of the scope of the proposed reform, here are some of the ideas discussed:

- Exploring alternatives to time-and-effort reporting requirements for salaries and wages
- Charging directly allocable administrative support as a direct cost
- Including the cost of certain computing devices as allowable direct cost supplies
- Consolidating the cost principles into a single document, with limited variations by type of entity

OMB POSTS ADVANCED NOTICE OF GUIDANCE ON COST PRINCIPALS FOR FEDERAL GRANTS

"This advance notice outlines the reform ideas for which OMB seeks public comment. These comments will assist OMB in its development in the coming months of a further Federal Register notice, to be published for comment later this year, which would propose specific revisions to existing requirements. These reform ideas relate to all the OMB Circulars. UCSD must follow with regards to cost principles on federal grants.

Pillowcases

Seems simple, right? Everyone has a pillow on their bed, but not all the kids at EBCCK did before Christmas 2010. Thanks to the staff at UCSD Dept of Chemistry and Biochemistry for their generous contribution of time in making these pillowcases for their new pillows.
